REPORT OF THE PRESIDENT

To the Board of Trustees:

I have the honor to present a report for the year closing June 30, 1929, the 54th year of the College.

On March 28, 1929, Katharine Lee Bates, Professor Emeritus of English Literature, died at her home in Wellesley after a long illness. Miss Bates graduated from Wellesley in 1880, the second class to receive degrees from the College. She received the Master of Arts degree in 1891. Middlebury College gave her the honorary degree of Litt.D. in 1914, Oberlin College in 1916, and she was one of the three alumnae who were awarded the LL.D. by Wellesley at the fiftieth anniversary celebration in May, 1925. Although Miss Bates retired from active teaching in 1925, she was up to the time of her death a very real part of the College. Her service to her Alma Mater can be no better described than in the following minute adopted by the Academic Council at the time of her death:

In the death of Katharine Lee Bates, Wellesley College suffers an immeasurable loss. From the time of her entrance as freshman to the day of her death as Professor Emeritus, her life was interwoven with the college fabric, and her distinctive individuality made itself felt in all her relationships, as student, instructor, professor. Possessing great strength of character, imaginative insight, resolute idealism, she gave her powers unsparingly to the service of the College and of her friends. As head, for many years, of the English Literature Department, she brought to her office productive scholarship, high standards, intellectual and moral, and unwearied patience in the search for truth. Her mind had the rare combination of delicate intuition with great power of concentration, and it constantly touched with quickening power the minds of her students and her colleagues. She lent to academic life the pungency of wit, the gentleness of humor and of kindest sympathy.

To her creative work she brought the same gifts of mind and of spirit; many volumes of prose and of verse give enduring expression to her devotion to truth and to beauty. Poetry was to her the very breath of life; nothing else in human nature was to her so full of hope for the future as the love of poetry; by her unflinching encouragement of young poets she sought to set free this energy of life and to make it potent among us. She lives in her native land in the vision created by poetic imagination of an America

Of this fairer world, ruled by human kindness, she was already a citizen; hers was a humanity that included all the life about her and touched it with understanding and beauty. Her gracious hospitality was extended to small and great alike, children, neighbors, scholars, poets, and friends from far or near. She had a feeling of comradeship with all the world, and of responsibility in regard to whatever concerns the welfare of the race. Her deep interest in world affairs, political and social, manifested itself in many a plea for justice, for the right choice at any parting of the ways. Her liberal spirit was eager in the cause of international fellowship and peace.

We, her friends and colleagues, wish to express our gratitude for her high idealism, carried into the common things of daily life; for her great achievement; her insight; her boundless sympathy; for the power of joy that was in her; and for her indomitable spirit, which hard work, practical difficulties, many sorrows, and increasing bodily weakness and pain could neither daunt nor discourage. In the light of this triumphant life we know that, even in our grief, we should not speak of loss, so deep is our recognition of that best of all gains: a sense of a great personality abiding with us in days past, days present, and days to come.

A service in memory of Miss Bates was held in the Chapel on May 12, 1929. The program of this service will be found in the Appendix of this Report.

A complete list of the changes in the faculty, including resignations and new appointments, will be found in the Appendix.

June, 1929, brought to a close the active service of several members of our faculty. Miss Mary Whiton Calkins, Professor of Philosophy and Psychology, retired in June under the provisions of the Carnegie Foundation with the title of Research Professor. Miss Calkins' service to Wellesley covers a period of forty-two years, from 1887 to 1929. She came to Wellesley in 1887 as tutor in Greek. She was made instructor and associate professor in psychology, and in 1898 professor of psychology and philosophy. Her publications and her teaching have brought distinction to her and to the College. Miss Calkins was the first woman to be elected president of the American Psychological Association and is the only woman who has ever been president of the American Philosophical Association. In 1916 she was Mills Lecturer in the University of California.

PRESIDENT'S REPORT

In December, 1927, she gave a series of lectures at Bedford College of the University of London, and a few months later was made an honorary member of the British Psychological Association. Miss Calkins is recognized as the foremost woman in her field and has received equal honors both here and abroad. In 1892 she founded, with the assistance of Professor Sanford of Clark University, the psychological laboratory at Wellesley, one of the first laboratories of psychology in America. The title of Research Professor voted her was a recognition by the trustees of the high quality of her published work. Her service on the committees of the Academic Council, notably that of the Committee on Graduate Instruction, has been farseeing and constructive. Moreover, she leaves a department which is one of the strongest in the College, and whose personnel is largely of her choosing. Mingled with the regret that the College must lose her from the classroom is the satisfaction that she will still continue her writing at her home in Newton, where conference and fellowship will be possible for new and old friends.

Miss Charlotte Almira Bragg, B.S., Massachusetts Institute of Technology, has been granted leave of absence for the coming year, and at its close will retire as Associate Professor of Chemistry, Emeritus. She came to Wellesley in September, 1890, as instructor in chemistry and was promoted to associate professor in 1897. She was an excellent teacher who rejoiced in the choicest spirits among her students and was equally interested in the average mind; it was only the laggard and the lazy who saw the sterner side of her nature. Loyal to her heart's core to her colleagues and to the College she so ardently served, no task was too hard for her if she was convinced it was hers to do. The "temporary chemical laboratory" was practically her home and all her friends regret that she could not have enjoyed a new laboratory, which we hope Wellesley will have some day. Nor was her interest confined to chemistry alone. She was passionately fond of music and scarcely a morning was she absent from the brief chapel service. She allowed herself few recreations, but if by chance she had a friend visiting her she seemed to have plenty of time to share with this friend lectures, concerts, and social recreations which otherwise she would not have permitted herself. For many persons, retirement from routine academic duties means many readjustments; for Miss Bragg it will simply be the transfer of that human kindness of hers from Wellesley friends to those outside the college walls.

Miss Laura Emma Lockwood, Ph.D., Professor of English Literature, will be on leave of absence in the coming year, and at its close, at her own request, will retire under the provisions of the Carnegie Foundation. Miss Lockwood was appointed instructor in English in 1899, associate professor in 1906, and professor in 1921. She has been one of the most popular teachers of the College, drawing large numbers to her classes. In the early years she taught English composition and for many years courses in English language, but it is as instructor of the Milton course that she will be gratefully remembered by many generations of students. This course was peculiarly her own and was undoubtedly the direct result of the research bearing fruit in her monumental work, "A Lexicon to the English Poetical Works of John Milton". By election of her colleagues she served as chairman of the Department of English Literature for several years. Outside of her chosen field she was a woman of wide interests and continued to keep in touch with her students even after they had left college. After travel abroad, Miss Lockwood will continue to make her home in Wellesley, where returning alumnæ will renew the friendship of undergraduate years.

The retirement of Miss Lockwood recalls other recent losses of the English Literature Department. Miss Martha Pike Conant, Associate Professor since 1910, presented her resignation to take effect in June, 1928, after a loyal and devoted service of eighteen years. Miss Vida Dutton Scudder, after forty-one years of teaching as instructor, associate professor and professor of English literature, retired under the provisions of the Carnegie Foundation in June, 1928. Miss Scudder's position in the literary world is too well known to need comment here. She will continue to live at her home in Wellesley, where new and old friends will find her.

PRESIDENT'S REPORT

It is with regret that record is made of the resignation of Henry Raymond Mussey, Professor of Economics since February, 1922. While his service of seven years has been relatively short, Mr. Mussey made himself a very real part of the College, interesting himself not only in the affairs of his department, but also in those of the College in general. He enjoyed the respect and confidence of his colleagues on the faculty, as well as that of the students. He resigned to become the managing editor of The Nation in New York.

Although his term of service was but two years, 1927-29, a word of appreciation should be said for Mr. Randall Thompson, Assistant Professor of Music, Organist, and Choir Director. Especially noteworthy was his success with the choir. While we congratulate him on the award of a Guggenheim fellowship, enabling him to pursue his work as a composer, we regret that the College must lose him.

Among the new appointments for 1928-29 special mention should be made of Miss Eglantyne Mary Jebb, M.A. Oxon., of Birmingham University, who was appointed Lecturer in English Literature. Miss Jebb had charge of the large course in Shakespeare for the entire year, and one of the courses open to freshmen in the first semester. She made an immediate impression upon the College by her friendliness and charming personality. The vigor and scholarly quality of her teaching was at once recognized by both students and colleagues. The interest which she showed in the general problems was keen and unusual in the case of one whose connection with the College was necessarily temporary.

Mr. Aurelio Macedonio Espinosa, Ph.D., Professor of Spanish at Stanford University, accepted an appointment as visiting professor in Spanish during the fall term. Although Mr. Espinosa's service was short, he made a significant contribution to the Department of Spanish. His addresses before the College, the Horton Club, and other smaller groups are remembered with pleasure. He brought to our attention fresh information on Spanish folklore and ballads.

The contribution which these two guests made to the College emphasizes anew the desire for a fund of $100,000, the income of which may be used to bring into residence annually some famous scholar, different departments acting as hosts from year to year. Here is an opportunity for a donor interested in Wellesley, in the fraternity of scholars, and in international relations.

No changes in the personnel of the Board of Trustees have occurred during the year under review.

The trustees authorized the change of Commencement from Tuesday to Monday as an experiment in June, 1929. On the whole the result was satisfactory and undoubtedly a change in the by-laws in regard to Commencement will be brought up at the November meeting. During the year the Board authorized the President to offer to all members of any professorial rank the privilege of absence on leave with full salary for a semester or half salary for the year. Heretofore this opportunity has been limited to the senior professor in each department. Other members of the faculty above the rank of instructor have been given leave, but without stipend. This action on the part of the trustees is deeply appreciated by the faculty, and will contribute greatly to the freshness and vigor of their teaching. Some six members of the faculty will avail themselves of this privilege in the coming year of 1929-30.

In the last report, mention was made of progress on Stone and Olive Davis Halls. These halls were opened in January, 1929, at the beginning of the winter term. Mrs. Jessie A. Engles, formerly head of Ridgeway, was given charge of Stone Hall with the supervision of the kitchen common to both halls, and Miss E. Isabella Foster of Freeman Hall was appointed head of Olive Davis Hall. The report of the Dean of Residence published herewith will record in more detail the transfer of these two heads of houses, the giving up of Wilder Hall in December, and of the Ridgeway Refectory at the close of the year. While this building has been in use only since January, it seems clear that there has been no mistake in arranging for a common kitchen for two halls.

In January, 1929, the trustees authorized the construction of the administration building, to be known ultimately as Hetty H. R. Green Hall. The L. D. Willcutt and Sons Company was given the contract under which construction will begin during the summer.

In the last report it was stated that the proposed faculty apartment house, if built, would probably be placed on the so-called orchard site. After more careful investigation it was found that the cost of bringing the various services—heat, light, and water—from the central plant would offset the cost of taxes involved in building on the Horton lot. The trustees, therefore, asked Mrs. Eliza Newkirk Rogers to make a plan for a somewhat smaller building on the Horton lot, at right angles to Hallowell House and parallel to Horton House. This decision was reached too late to hope to have the house ready for September, 1929, but it is expected that construction will begin in time for completion by September, 1930.

Mr. Wendell H. Kayser, Business Manager of the College since 1923, having accepted a position on the Pacific coast, presented his resignation to take effect on July 1, 1928, or as soon thereafter as the trustees were prepared to release him. During his five years of service, Mr. Kayser did much to organize the work under his supervision. During these years the service building was erected and important renovations were made in the central heating plant. He also had a large part in the supervision of construction in the case of Alumnae Hall, Severance Hall, and Stone-Davis Halls. A plan for the group insurance of the employees of the College was also established during his term of service. The College was extremely fortunate in securing as his successor Mr. Charles Bowen Hodges, M.E., Stevens Institute of Technology. Mr. Hodges has already made himself familiar with the diverse problems of his office, has secured the co-operation of his assistants, and is proving himself not only a competent adviser but a friend to all members of the staff.

The co-operation between the seven colleges—Barnard, Bryn Mawr, Mount Holyoke, Radcliffe, Smith, Vassar and Wellesley—has continued happily during the year under review, and through the activities of the Seven College Alumnae Committee many articles have appeared in various magazines, and two dinners have been held. The first dinner was in November,

WELLESLEY COLLEGE

1928, in Philadelphia, at which President Park of Bryn Mawr presided, and Mr. Thomas W. Lamont made an appeal to the public for the support of women's colleges. The second dinner was in May, 1929, in Chicago, when Dr. George E. Vincent was the principal outside speaker, and all the college presidents spoke briefly. No immediate financial result was expected, but it is evident in other ways that this co-operative appeal is receiving attention.

A list of the new courses offered for 1929-30 will be found in the Appendix.

The policy of allowing to juniors and seniors honors in subjects, established seven years ago, has proved itself valuable. Beginning with the Class of 1923 the students who have taken honors have gone on in most cases to graduate work, and have won distinction in the graduate schools attended. For three years a group of students has spent the junior year in France. This group has never been large, but these students have returned to college with new zest for the work of the senior year. It has been a great advantage to these students that the assistant to the Director in charge was in 1927-28 Miss Dorothy W. Dennis, and in 1928-29 Miss Louise B. Dillingham, assistant professors of French on leave of absence from Wellesley. Suggestion has been made for a similar arrangement with Germany and Spain. There remains the question whether the students will not get more from a year spent after graduation.

The Personnel Board added to its duties during this year the whole problem of undergraduate employment. Heretofore the General Secretary of the Christian Association has received the applications for student help and has undertaken to find the student for the job. With the coming of Miss Frances F. Sturgis as Associate in the Personnel Board, adjustment in duties made it possible for the whole question of student employment to be put in the hands of the Placement Secretary, Miss Edith A. Sprague, where of course it logically belongs. During the year covered by this report, the Director, the Associate, and the Faculty Associate have had half-hour interviews with all the members of the senior, junior and sophomore classes. The Associate has made it her special problem to investigate the opportunities open to the inexperienced college graduate—that is, to secure if possible places for those members of the senior class who wish to enter at once upon some form of employment. The whole object is, of course, to learn the problems, if any, of the student, and to assist her in solving them.

It should be added that the Dean of Freshmen, Miss Knapp, and the instructor in charge of the prescribed course in Hygiene, Dr. DeKruif, have held conferences with members of the freshman class. While the freshman conferences are not formally a part of the work of the Personnel Bureau, the knowledge gained of the freshmen is passed on to the Personnel Bureau for use in the following years. All these conferences are of course in addition to those held by instructors with students.

Many questions are always asked about the size of the College. On November 1, 1909, the registration of the College was 1,319. By November 1, 1919, ten years later, the numbers had increased to 1,529. Since that time there has been little change, as the following table shows:

Year	Candidates for B.A.	Total Regis- tration	Freshmen	Total of New Students
1919-20	1,478	1,529	334	396
1920-21	1,488	1,551	415	486
1921-22	1,492	1,548	402	462
1922-23	1,477	1,533	424	495
1923-24	1,544	1,629	403	481
1924-25	1,502	1,583	405	460
1925-26	1,520	1,599	441	510
1926-27	1,507	1,588	412	484
1927-28	1,533	1,604	417	473
1928-29	1,530	1,597	398	453

The table gives for each of the ten years, 1919-29, the total registration and the number of new students, separating the freshmen from other new students. The small number of freshmen entering in 1919 was due to the fact that that year for the first time examinations were required from all candidates for admission. An effort is made to keep the candidates for the Bachelor's degree at 1,500, but the uncertainties of the number of summer withdrawals from the three upper classes make it difficult not to exceed this limit or to fall below it.

WELLESLEY COLLEGE

A list of the gifts received during the year will be found in the Appendix. Among these, special mention should be made of the Fanny Bullock Workman Scholarship Fund. Mrs. Workman, who was vitally interested in opportunities for women, was a pioneer explorer of the Himalayas. She provided in her will for a fund of $30,000 to found a graduate scholarship at Wellesley College, with the condition that her husband should have the use of the money through his life. With great generosity Mr. Workman signified his intention to pay this bequest in installments, three of $10,000 each. Twenty thousand dollars had been received by June 30, and the scholarship was awarded for 1928-29 to Miss Margaret Elizabeth Davidson, B.A. Goucher College, M.A. Wellesley College, who will continue her studies at Cornell University. Mr. Workman has signified his intention of making the last payment of $10,000 during the next academic year.

Mrs. Dorothy Bridgman Atkinson, 1910, offered to the College a gift of $2,000 as a fellowship for the use of some member of the faculty for a year of research, available for the academic year 1929-30. A committee of the faculty was appointed to determine the conditions of award and to receive applications. The fellowship was awarded by vote of the Academic Council to Miss Ruth Elvira Clark, Associate Professor of French. She will spend the year in London and France, continuing her study of the Jansenists, investigating particularly the relations between Port Royal and England. It is not possible to exaggerate the importance of this gift, offering as it does, to members of the faculty, opportunity for leisure to pursue chosen problems of research.

Professor Katharine Lee Bates bequeathed to the College her library. In addition to its intrinsic value, it is treasured because of its connection with this beloved professor. The Librarian speaks in detail of the range of books in this collection. Because of Miss Bates's long study of Shakespeare (the course which she carried throughout her active teaching) her books of the Elizabethan period are especially valuable and will be kept for the present in the locked cases in the room of the Library devoted to English literature.

PRESIDENT'S REPORT

The Katharine Lee Bates Professorship of English Literature, founded by Ex-President Caroline Hazard, now amounting to $100,000, becomes available for the ensuing year.

The Semi-Centennial Fund continues to grow and gifts to this Fund were greatly stimulated by the offer of Mr. Edward S. Harkness to give one-quarter (or $175,000) of the $700,000 needed to complete the endowment part of the Semi-Centennial Fund, provided the remaining three-quarters were pledged or paid by July 1, 1929. Mr. Harkness later extended the time to January 1, 1930, and it is confidently hoped to secure the $525,000 by that date. If that expectation is fulfilled, the $9,000,000 Fund will come so near completion that there may be hope that it will be raised by the close of the year 1930—that is, ten years after the Fund was planned. In this connection it is a pleasure to acknowledge the second gift from the Alumnae Fund, amounting to $35,168, of which $32,576 is specified for the Zoological Laboratory. The Class of 1879 specifies that its gift to the Alumnae Fund should be used for a sundial to mark the site of College Hall centre.

In closing this report I wish to call attention to the reports of my colleagues published herewith. These reports deal with many questions and details without which no picture of the College can be formed.

I cannot conclude without again expressing my indebtedness to my colleagues on the faculty for their loyal support, and to the trustees for their understanding and interest in the problems of the College.

ELLEN F. PENDLETON,
President.

June 30, 1929.

REPORT OF THE DEAN OF THE COLLEGE

To the President of Wellesley College:

I have the honor to submit the following report for the year closing July 1, 1929. During the academic year 1928-29, 284 courses were actually given by the various departments, aggregating 609½ hours per week, not including hours duplicated because of additional sections of the same course. These 284 courses include only one course given by the Department of Hygiene; namely, the lecture course prescribed for freshmen. The distribution of these courses in the various departments will be given in the Appendix. The following table shows the relative amount of instruction given by the various departments in the past four years. The unit of instruction used is the instruction of one student, one hour a week for one academic year.

REPORT OF THE DEAN OF THE COLLEGE

The following table is based on tables like the preceding, and shows the relative size of the different departments of instruction for the last four years. The departments of Biblical History, Mathematics (until the year 1927-28), English Composition, Philosophy (until the year 1927-28), and Reading and Speaking owe their places in the first ranks in part to the fact that they are prescribed subjects.

In September, 1928, the seven seniors who failed to pass the general examination in June met the test and were awarded the degree of Bachelor of Arts at the November meeting of the trustees. They are ranked with the Class of 1928.

In June, 1929, 357 students received the degree of Bachelor of Arts. This makes the total number of Bachelor's degrees conferred by the College 9,968. The academic requirement for this degree is the satisfactory completion of sixty hours of class work. For the completion of her work toward this degree every student must show that she has carried successfully nine hours in each of two departments, or twelve hours in one department and six in a second department, or twelve hours in one department and six in allied courses.

The following table shows the students in the Class of 1929 who in fulfillment of the above requirement completed nine or more hours in the various departments.

Of these 357 graduates, 24 won the rank of Durant Honor Scholars, and 57 the rank of Wellesley College Honor Scholars.

During the year 1928-29, 16 students carried work for honors in special subjects, 15 seniors, and one junior who will have the advantage of a second year of directed work. These 15 seniors maintained a high standing in all their work and in some cases were reported as writing distinguished studies in their special investigation—in Psychology and Education, Art and History, German, Musical Theory, Economics, Physics and Chemistry, Mathematics, and English. Several of the students received added recognition in gaining the prize for current events awarded by the New York Times, in being awarded the fellowship for study in Germany, and fellowships at Radcliffe, New York University, the University of California, and the two graduate scholarships allotted by the trustees. They will carry on graduate study and will gain the rewards of their scholarship, and reflect credit on the College which gave them the impulse in their honors course for advanced study. Their instructors have given these students most generously of their time, and have rejoiced in their initiative and keen interest.

The 81 juniors and seniors who have won the grades of Durant and Wellesley College Scholars are a highly creditable group, who more than offset the delinquents that we have to record in our "dropped" column. The two years that the general examination has been required as a test of graduation for all seniors have had excellent results. It is not a simple matter to arrange for this additional test on the whole subject of the major department in a college which has not the resources for the tutorial system. The departments are still studying how best to cope with such a situation, by meeting the students to explain to them the purpose and intent of correlation of courses in the major subject, and the difference between a whole field of work and a collection of separate courses. We believe in the advantage of such a final study for the relation of the parts to the whole and have confidence that a satisfactory solution may be found even without a staff of tutors. Some departments in their offerings for the year 1929-30 have included a course of Directed Reading from one to three hours. This course may be outside the courses elected or supplementary to them, and may fill in the gaps inevitable in any department plan. All these benefits to the students mean added time for the instructors, who have so far met the demands.

Ten students spent their junior year in France under the direction of the University of Delaware, with Miss Dillingham, Assistant Professor of French at Wellesley College, acting as assistant director of the group. This is the third year that Wellesley has sent a group of juniors to France, and again they have reflected credit on their training and received high commendation for their attitude toward their opportunities both academic and social. They have ranked high in comparison with students from other colleges in this group and return with enthusiastic reports of the rich year that they have enjoyed under admirable management.

The total number of students registered November, 1928, was 1,597, classified as follows:

What conclusions may we draw from these tables of figures? Perhaps the increase in the number of withdrawals and dismissals is not especially significant. The Committee on Defective Scholarship means to dismiss those who are obviously out of place in college for any adequate reason, either academic or social, and sophomores are encouraged to withdraw, if not actually dismissed, who are profiting little for themselves, or for the College. To determine more clearly the grounds of dismissal, the system of grading the academic standing by quality points has been introduced for the classes of 1931 and following. This system gives 3 points for a unit (1 hour) of A quality, 2 for B, and 1 point for C. By such grading there is better realization of the meaning of quality, less satisfaction in the respectable mediocrity of a C record, which may sink to D but never rises to B or A in either required or elective courses. This fairer valuation facilitates the sifting necessary in any academic institution jealous of its honorable standing and wishing to give of its best to students who can profit by the opportunities so richly offered.

Dean of the College.

REPORT OF THE DEAN OF FRESHMEN

To the President of Wellesley College:

I have the honor to submit a report of the freshman class for the year closing July 1, 1929.

The class entering Wellesley College in September, 1928, numbered 400 students, of whom 2 were former students readmitted to Wellesley College and 398 were new students. The distribution of these students according to the character of the schools in which they received their preparation is as follows:

Preparation entirely in public school	144
Preparation entirely in private school	138
Preparation partly in public and partly in private schools . .	109
Part preparation in college	9
Number of schools in which preparation was completed . .	225
High schools	102
Private schools	114
Colleges	9
Schools in New England	56
Schools outside New England	169

The following table indicates the method of admission used by the 400 freshmen:

New Plan	233
Old Plan (C. E. E. B. examinations)	115
Old Plan (Regents examinations)	47
Old Plan (C. E. E. B. and Regents)	3
Canadian examinations	1
Without examinations	1

These figures show an increase over the previous year in the proportion of candidates admitted by the New Plan. The percentage admitted by the New Plan in 1927 was 49.8; in 1928 it was 58.2. The student admitted without matriculation examinations was an Albanian whose preparation was completed in the Kyrias Lycée in Tirana, Albania.

WELLESLEY COLLEGE

The following subjects were offered by the entering class in the group of restricted and unrestricted electives:

The only change in admission requirements which went into effect for the class entering Wellesley in 1928 was the provision for accepting in the group of free electives a unit of practical music when accompanied by a unit of either harmony or appreciation of music. A definition of the requirements in harmony, appreciation, and practical music was published in the Wellesley Calendar for 1928-29. The unit of practical music must be tested by examination at Wellesley College.

Placement tests in English Composition were given to all members of the freshman class during the opening week of college. On the basis of excellence in these tests and in the entrance examinations in English, 26 students were exempt from the required freshman course in English Composition. Placement tests in French were given to all students electing French 103 in the second week of the college year. A special exemption examination in Hygiene 120 was offered to freshmen, but only 3 took the test and 2 were exempt.

REPORT OF THE DEAN OF RESIDENCE

To the President of Wellesley College:

I have the honor to present the following report of the Department of Halls of Residence for the year ending June 30, 1929.

The College opened in September, 1928, with practically the same number of students as in September, 1927—1,597 and 1,604 respectively; in undergraduate numbers, 1,530 and 1,533.

The delay in the completion of the twin dormitories, Stone and Olive Davis Halls, had been anticipated in the spring, so that tentative plans had been made in advance, and the problems involved, while difficult, were not unexpected. It had seemed best to make the assignments for the two houses at the regular room drawing in May, in spite of grave doubts as to their completion. Consequently not only the two heads of houses, but six members of the faculty and 162 students needed temporary housing until Christmas. To meet this need, campus houses were filled to their capacity, including the guest rooms which were requisitioned for the homeless faculty members. One resourceful student, especially anxious to be in Claffin, discovered that the first floor kitchenette could be transformed into a single room, and with Mrs. Chadderdon's somewhat dubious approval it was so equipped. Incidentally, the quaint little room of two levels became so dear to the heart of its occupant that she was dispossessed with strong protestations when it became possible in January to give her a regular room and to restore her corner to its normal use.

Miss Foster, appointed Head of Olive Davis Hall, was asked to continue in charge of Freeman until the holidays. Townsend, which had been closed, as we supposed permanently, in June, was reopened and given over to Mrs. Engles until she could take her place at the head of Stone Hall. Single rooms for thirteen students were fitted up in the building adjoining Dower House, connected with its front entrance by a covered porch.

When campus possibilities were exhausted, appeal was made to the village hostesses who had been notified, when hopes of Stone and Olive Davis Halls were strong, that their houses would not be needed for freshmen after June, 1928. Mrs. Stone at 18 Belair Road, Mrs. Lee at 25 Leighton Road, Mrs. Porter at 6 Cross Street, and Miss Allen at 25 Weston Road, who had many times done service to the College in strenuous days, agreed to take students for the first term. With this equipment, together with some vacancies in the other private houses listed for freshmen, we managed to weather the first three months with some excusable grumbling on the part of the waiting students, but not too great discomfort. Some of those who were given their second choice in campus dormitories decided to remain in these rooms for the year, and a careful estimate of numbers in December showed that the new houses would have space enough for the Wilder household in addition to those lodged in temporary quarters. The news was broken to the house just before the Christmas holidays. It was received with lamentations, for Wilder had never had, perhaps in all its history, a family more fond of its pleasant rooms and wide corridors, its spacious entrance hall and attractive living-room. But again Wellesley students proved themselves good sports. Mrs. Lyman and her girls gave a farewell tea for all former residents of Wilder still in college, and then packed trunks and boxes for the final moving.

At the close of the Christmas vacation, the new houses opened their doors, and, through the gallant efforts of Mrs. Engles and her staff, luncheon was served on the opening day to the entire family, including the Homestead and Dower groups, though various essentials of dining-room and kitchen equipment did not arrive until that very morning. The hearth fires of the two Halls were formally lighted after dinner on Sunday, March 10, with the pretty ceremony used for other houses, led by President Pendleton.

No new house is ever perfect. The household machinery did not at once run without a jar, but Stone and Olive Davis Halls are proving beautiful and comfortable additions to our list of campus houses, and many generations of Wellesley girls will enjoy the lovely views across the Lake and the hardly less lovely ones over the meadow to Founders Hall and the Botany Laboratory.

The end of the year 1927-28 brought to a close the use of the Ridgeway dining-room as such after twenty-one years of service. With 78 freshmen on the campus it was possible to provide for the remainder in the dining-rooms of Eliot, Noanett and Washington, as well as for the lodgers in the temporary houses, though this meant overcrowding for the fall term. No space is long left vacant in college buildings, and doubtless this lower story of Ridgeway will have an aftermath of usefulness, though in what form is not yet decided.

Only four private houses were retained for the entire year—Mrs. Mottley's, 628 Washington Street; Harris House, with Miss Mary B. Jenkins, Wellesley 1903, as chaperon in the absence of Mrs. Richardson; Mrs. Older's, 11 Abbott Street; and Mrs. Swallow's, 14 Abbott Street.

There have been few changes in the heads of houses. Mrs. Brandau, because of her illness the previous spring, exchanged the headship of Wood for the lighter responsibilities of Crofton, and Miss Rogers left Webb to take her place at Wood. Miss Margaret D. Christian, Wellesley 1915, renewed the associations of her own senior year at Wood by substituting for Mrs. Brandau from March until Commencement, and the College was fortunately able to retain her during the past year as Head of Webb. Mrs. Lyman moved from Wilder to Freeman when Miss Foster assumed charge of Olive Davis.

Happily for the interests of this department, former heads of houses do not lose their interest in the welfare of Wellesley when they give up their posts, but stand ready to help in emergencies. Thus Mrs. Balderston took charge of Olive Davis Hall when Miss Foster was obliged to be absent for some weeks on account of illness, and no year passes without several instances of similar assistance.

The Club House, under the direction of Mrs. Bronson and Miss Lincoln, has had a busy and satisfactory year. Its week-ends have been full and there have been few nights when no students were availing themselves of its privileges.

Horton House grows steadily in usefulness under the wise management of Mrs. Bergen, and each year becomes more and more a necessity for the faculty and the center of their social life.

There have been no unusual features in the year's schedule of meetings and conferences. A continuous procession of interesting and distinguished guests has passed through our gates, entertained for the most part at Tower Court and Horton House.

In ending my report, may I express my deep gratitude to the Trustees for their kindness and generosity to me during my illness for the last two months of the year, and to my colleagues who cheerfully added my work to their own during my long absence.

Respectfully submitted,

EDITH SOUTHER TUFTS,

Dean of Residence.

The regular work of the Committee included the consideration of the credentials of candidates for admission; the general supervision of the work of graduate students; the awarding of graduate scholarships; the consideration of the credentials of applicants for the Alice Freeman Palmer Fellowship, the Fanny Bullock Workman Scholarship, and the two Trustee Scholarships for members of the graduating class. The Committee presented a report to the Academic Council on the operation of the new legislation concerning the modern language requirement. The Academic Council voted to adhere to the existing legislation but to permit the Committee on Graduate Instruction "upon recommendation of a department to present to the Academic Council a recommendation for exception to the legislation," when a particular case seems to justify such action.

REPORT ON GRADUATE INSTRUCTION

Upon the unanimous vote of the Committee it was recommended to the Academic Council that the Director of the Department of Hygiene and Physical Education be made a member of the Committee ex officio.

Respectfully submitted,

Chairman.

REPORT OF THE LIBRARIAN

To the President of Wellesley College:

During the year we have added to the Library 4,464 volumes. Of this number, 57 were added to the Treasure Room collections and 21 to the Brooks Room. Of the remaining 4,386 volumes, 3,733 were added by purchase, 653 by gift. The Plimpton Collection numbers 1,035 volumes, so that the total now accessioned is 131,059.

We have expended for books $11,107.91; for periodical subscriptions, $3,721.49; for binding and repairs, $2,533.32; a total of $17,362.72. This sum is derived from gifts and from the income of funds as follows:

From gifts: for the purchase of books for the Art Library, $209.57; for the purchase of books for the Susan M. Hallowell Botanical Library, $17.14; for the purchase of books for the general reference collection, $49.35; for books on historical subjects, $54.27; for books in the field of English Literature, $777.09; for books for the Music Library, $64.54.

From funds: Abbott, $50.09; Avery, $13.50; Bunting, $130.00; Dayton, $204.26; Horsford, Library Permanent and Van Nuy's funds, $12,857.75; Jewett, $64.40; Kirk, $252.74; Minns, $441.85; Morse, $54.96; Niles, $69.56; Peters, $579.77; Sanborn, $274.50; Shafer, $123.84; Sweet, $283.32; Wenckebach, $102.69. Also from fines, $274.74; from Botany insurance, $372.79; from a sum received from the sale of duplicates and other books, $40.00.

Important purchases of the year include: Flaubert, Œuvres complètes, 17 vols.; Balzac, Œuvres complètes, 32 vols.; Sir Thomas North's Plutarch, a limited edition printed at the Shakespeare Head Press, 8 vols.; Catalogue of the McAlpin Collection of British History and Theology, 1500-1700 in the Union Theological Seminary, 4 vols.; Goldschmidt, German Illumination, 2 vols.; Richter, Sculpture and Sculptors of the Greeks; Borenus and Tristram, English Medieval Painting;

REPORT OF THE LIBRARIAN

Porter, Spanish-Romanesque Sculpture; the Pessach Haggadah, a fourteenth-century Oriental codex in the library at Darmstadt, text and reproduction, a limited edition, 2 vols.; Adberhalden, Biochemische Handlexicon, 12 vols.; Syria, Revue d'art oriental et d'archéologie, 1920-27, 8 vols.

Some time ago the Modern Language Association appointed a committee to compile a list of periodicals bearing on the study of the Hispanic languages and literatures not available at that time in the college and university libraries of the United States and Canada, in the hope of gradually bringing about their purchase and of apportioning their acquisition, if possible, among the institutions willing to buy them. The Wellesley College Library is very glad to co-operate in this way, and with the advice of Professor Bushee, who is a member of the Modern Language Association's committee, we took advantage during the year of some offers by Spanish second-hand book dealers, thus adding to our collection of extinct Spanish periodicals, which now includes the following: Archivo de investigaciones históricas, 1911, 2 vols.; Cultura española, 1906-09, 15 vols.; Revista europea, 1874-79, 4 vols.; Diario de las musas, 1790-91, 1 vol.; El Guadalhorce, 1839-40, 2 vols.; El Iris, 1841, 2 vols. The last two of these are not owned elsewhere in the United States, though El Iris is in the University of Toronto, and a partial set of the Diario de las musas is available at that institution.

With the rapidly mounting cost of periodical sets, and the growing pressure for shelf room, librarians of college and university libraries are coming to believe that some system of co-operative buying of expensive and unusual books as well as periodicals will have to be worked out, at least by institutions in the same geographical region. Even the largest libraries have to limit their acquisitions. In this connection the librarian of one of the largest university libraries says in his report: "Thus far this process of limitation of field has been instinctive, with very little conscious direction; but as the volume of the world's literature grows we are faced with the necessity of giving it an ordered basis. . . . Our collections have been built up year after year with very little regard for what neighboring institutions are doing, with the result that there has been undue duplication of expensive and valuable, though infrequently consulted books. . . . With the perfection of our system of interlibrary loans and with increasing facilities of transportation, the purposes of the scholar are served almost as well if the unusual book is available in another library in his region, as if it is in that of his own institution."

The bequest to the College of the library of Professor Katharine Lee Bates has added many volumes which have an additional value in having been the property of one of the most noted members of the College. Her collection of books on Elizabethan England and of dramas of the Elizabethan period will be kept for the present in the locked cases in the English Literature Room in the Library. Her practically complete collection of works by members of her department is a valuable supplement to our own collection of works by members of the faculty and alumnae, as yet far from complete, which is kept in the Pierce Room. In the field of contemporary poetry, the many volumes owned by Miss Bates, added to our own collection, supplement the English Poetry Collection described by Professor Palmer in the Catalogue of that collection as "from Chaucer to Masefield" but inclusive of other modern poets, though with no pretense to completeness. Miss Bates's scrapbooks, in which she kept clippings of all her poems and other writings which appeared in periodicals and newspapers, and the manuscripts of some of her poems, were presented to the Library by her nieces, Mrs. Burgess and Mrs. Keith. An exhibition of some of the most valuable books and manuscripts in Miss Bates's bequest, together with photographs and other material loaned by her niece and executor, Mrs. Burgess, attracted much attention during Commencement week.

Continued generosity on the part of members of the faculty and other friends of the College, including learned societies, colleges, Federal and State governments, has added, as usual, many volumes to our collection. Outstanding gifts to the General Library included Gothein's History of Garden Art, from Miss Vida D. Scudder; the American Annual Register, 1825-33, 7 vols., from Professor A. O. Norton; and an early book on the persecution of the Quakers, New England Judged by the Spirit of the Lord, London, 1703, from Mr. J. W. Farwell. Gifts to the Susan M. Hallowell Botanical Library included Bentham, Flora Australiensis, from Miss Susan Minns; Graf, Die Alpenpflanzen, 4 vols., from the same donor; and from Miss Elizabeth Morse, Die natürlichen Pflanzenfamilien.

Aubert, L'Art française à l'époque romane, and Notre Dame de Paris by the same author were given by Miss Helen Woodruff for the Art Library.

Of especial interest to Wellesley College, because of its association with the founders, was the gift by Dr. Emilie Jones Barker of the first edition of Longfellow's Poetical Works which had been presented to her by Mrs. Fowle, the mother of Mrs. Durant.

An interesting gift to the General Library is that of the Bible of the House of Alba, presented to the Library by the Duke of Berwick and Alba. The original codex of this Bible, which has been in the possession of his family for some two hundred years, was written early in the fifteenth century. It is a translation into Spanish, made from the original Hebrew at the command of Don Luis de Guzman by his vassal, Rabbi Mose Arragel, a learned Spanish Jew. The present Duke of Alba undertook the publication of the manuscript some years ago. The two folio volumes contain, besides the complete text, many facsimiles and reproductions of the miniatures and illuminated letters.

Mr. George A. Plimpton has made a valuable addition to the Dante collection by his gift to the Plimpton Collection of a fragment on vellum consisting of fifty-one leaves of the Divine Comedy, a fifteenth-century manuscript. The following description of the manuscript is from the Catalogue of the Plimpton Collection: "The writing is a clear semi-gothic. . . . the initials of each tercet are in color and at the beginning of each canto is an initial in gold and colors. The commentary is by Francesco Buti, who held the chair of letters in the University of Pisa."

The completion of the Catalogue of the Frances Taylor Pearsons Plimpton Collection by Professor Margaret H. Jackson is the outstanding event of the library year. The publishing of the Catalogue by the Harvard University Press was made possible by Mr. George A. Plimpton, to whose generosity we owe the collection itself, and in form and content it is worthy of the books which it describes. Too much cannot be said of the careful and scholarly work of the compiler, whose long and intimate acquaintance with the books in the collection, and with the literature of the period which they cover, as well as her years as head of the Department of Italian, gave her a peculiar fitness for the task. The Catalogue lists the material of the collection in three divisions: the General Collection; the Romances of Chivalry, Chivalric Epics and Burlesques; the Manuscripts. It is illustrated with reproductions of title-pages, wood-cuts and text. Complete bibliographical description of each item is followed by bibliographical notes giving information as to provenance, peculiarities of different editions, and other interesting matter. Where material was available, a brief biographical note has been inserted after the name of each author.

Additions to the English Poetry Collection made during the year by Professor Palmer include thirty-two autograph letters and other manuscripts, five pamphlets, and forty-nine books. Among these the following are of outstanding interest or importance: Child's English and Scottish Popular Ballads, first edition, five volumes in ten, with a letter from Child inserted; John Kenyon's Poems, London, 1883, with presentation inscription, "To Miss E. B. Barrett with the author's affectionate regards." To the Browning Collection was also added Some Memories of Robert Browning, especially bound for the Treasure Room, and with a presentation inscription from the author, Fanny B. Browning. The book embodies the talk which Mrs. Browning gave in the Brooks Room in May, 1927.

A ticket of admission to Westminster Abbey for the funeral of Lord Tennyson was also presented by Professor Palmer, besides twenty-two letters written by Christina Rossetti, the manuscript of a poem by George Borrow, another of a poem by Goethe with his signature, and letters and poems in the hands of various less-known authors.

Books and manuscripts from the Treasure Room have been on exhibition during the year, including exhibitions of Blake, Goldsmith, Dr. Johnson, books with interesting inscriptions and autograph letters. There have been 976 visitors to the room, including visits from several clubs, schools and associations. In addition, college classes in history, literature and mathematics have been held in the room.

The number of current accessions catalogued during the year amounts to 6,456 volumes, representing 2,717 titles exclusive of duplicates, periodicals and continuations. In addition 2,722 volumes have been recatalogued, representing 741 titles. Besides the work represented by these figures, a duplicate catalogue for the Astronomy Library was undertaken and practically completed during the year, and considerable preparatory work was done on recataloguing and making a duplicate catalogue for the Art Library.

The amount and consequent cost of binding increase steadily. This year 583 volumes of periodicals, 284 pamphlet volumes and 55 music scores were sent to the binder, besides 915 books sent for rebinding or repair; a total of 1,837 volumes, an increase over last year of 389 volumes. The practice of sending little-used periodicals to the shelves with only a heavy paper binding was continued, and during the summer about 1,000 books were replaced in bindings which had become loosened.

The circulation of books in the General Library for the year is shown by the following table:

Total number of books circulated	44,393
Number of reserved books circulated	15,285
Charged to students (including reserved books)	38,506
Charged to members of the faculty	5,464
Charged to alumnae and others	423

This table shows a slight decrease as opposed to the large increase last year in the number of books circulated, but such fluctuations are not of great importance as indicating the amount of actual studying by students. It may be noted that the circulation of books among the faculty has decreased by five hundred. Figures of circulation are interesting, but not always reliable as a basis for judgment where so many other factors enter. Perhaps a better indication of the profitable use of the Library is the concentrated attention of the students who study there. The large Reading Room, with its constant coming and going between the two ends of the building, is a very distracting place, yet time after time the Librarian has noticed, when going through the room with interesting guests, how few heads are raised, even when the rule of silence is broken by a question or remark by one of the party.

The installation of cases in the Exhibition Hall during the summer enabled us to move the Ruskin Collection from the Treasure Room and so give room for the constantly growing English Poetry Collection. Steel stack cases were also put into a little-used room in the basement, thus relieving the crowding of the first stack. A part of the contents of the basement stack was moved to the new cases and the bound periodicals were moved from the first to the basement stack, thus giving the entire first stack to English literature.

The change in the lighting of the Delivery Room has been of great advantage to the desk attendants and to users of the catalogue and trade lists, as well as to the students who use the reserved book shelves in that room.

The Librarian wishes to express in closing her appreciation of the loyalty of the Staff and of the friendly and intelligent interest of the Library Committee in the problems of administration.

Respectfully submitted,

ETHEL DANE ROBERTS,
Librarian.

REPORT
TREASURER
JAMES DEAN
1928-1929

TO THE TRUSTEES OF WELLESLEY COLLEGE:

The Treasurer submits the following report of the financial operations of the College for the year ended June 30, 1929.

Generally speaking, the twelve months ending June 30, 1929, was a period of sagging bond prices and extraordinary advances in the quoted prices for stocks. The drop in bond prices was not severe but rather a gradual wearing away of quotations which brought prices down to the approximate level of 1924. On the other hand, the advance in stocks was spectacular and a level was reached which indicated that the speculating public were unduly discounting future earnings and prospects in railroad, public utility, and industrial fields.

The security holdings of Wellesley College as of June 30, 1929, were about 10% stocks and 90% in bonds, mortgages, cash, and short time investments. In 1927 and 1928 the policy was adopted of liquidating all bonds which were not held to be desirable for permanent investment. While on account of high money rates, engendered in large part by the speculative fever in the stock market, bonds declined somewhat, as above stated, the loss in quoted prices is comparatively insignificant and there is a substantial excess in market value of our bond holdings over book value.

Although our holdings of stocks are only about 10% of our total security holdings, the quotations as of June 30, 1929, showed a large profit over book value. While it was the judgment of the Finance Committee and of the Treasurer that stock prices were not likely to hold, nevertheless such holdings were acquired by the College at prices which give an unusually good return on the cost price and, generally speaking, represent investments which it was deemed advisable to hold permanently. In fact it is my judgment that when the proper time arrives the proportion of our holdings in stocks should be increased. It was, however, our unanimous opinion that stock prices were not favorable to increasing our equity holdings. The judgment of the Finance Committee and the Treasurer as to the financial situation can best be exemplified by calling attention to our position on June 30, 1929, which shows $424,983 in cash and $2,060,000 in short term investments of the highest character. In other words approximately 27.13% of the book value of our security holdings was in cash or short time investments having less than two years to run.

It is worthy of note that the College operated for the year within its budget and that as of June 30, 1929 the market value of our cash and security holdings exceeded the book value by $964,326. The book value is $9,159,110.

I wish to convey my deep appreciation of the support and cooperation of the Finance-Committee.

JAMES DEAN,
Treasurer
